

Built New website with scalable customer support

Software Company

The challenge

A local software company had an out-of-date website that neither reflected their operation nor adequately met their technical and customer support needs.

What we did

navitend identified the key elements required in a new website to properly represent them to their user base -- both existing and future!

The result

navitend created a new website based on a Content Management System platform to enable this firm to easily manage their licensed software users as well as publish training materials to their website. Their clients can download new software revisions as well as upload data files useful for technical support.

Talk to a person, not a ticket

Tell us what's going on. We'll listen, ask good questions, and give you a straight answer about whether we can help.
